Backing

- Backing is when a front sound is replaced by a sound made in the back of the mouth. Backing is usually seen in more severe cases of phonological delay.
- Examples - "goo" for "do", or "cop" for "top"
- Approx age of elimination - No approximation of age as backing is not a typical phonological error as part of speech development
- When to see - It is recommended that children begin seeing a speech pathologist when they are experiencing difficulties in communicating and being understood by others, or receiving negative reactions from others or themselves in relation to their speech.
